

Richard for so long. Richardson was not surprised when Jean left with a few shots. The big fellow can hit a heavy body check as he showed on occasion. He knows how to deal along the boards. He could be the Hart Trophy winner this year.

Young Henri Richard will know today or tomorrow whether he is going to stay up. Much will depend on how Toe Blake looks at it. Right now his chances would seem to be good, because of the absence of Geoffrion who might not be back in action for a month. The fear that he is too small has been pretty well dispelled. This kid is a sort of pocket Hercules. He is beautifully muscled and like the Rocket, he is very strong looking. He should improve as he goes along.

Talbot is a comer if one judges on what he has shown so far. He fits into a very strong defence in an insurance way. He is fortunate he can be schooled in such exceptional company.

Wag's Number Retired

It was fun to see Juan Sheridan tearing downfield for a touch yesterday. He kept glancing around like a harness driver with a lead, looking for someone to make a pass to, in case he was tackled. He wasn't even puffing when he finished his long jaunt.

Als were so superior to Riders yesterday you had to feel sorry for the latter even though it seemed apparent that some of them were not trying too hard. There will be four or five of them lopped off the squad after today. They will be passengers on a plane or train for a change instead of passengers on the field.

Als overwhelmed them and Patterson was at his starry best. You would think that coaches would instruct their kickers to keep the ball away from him on kickoffs, but those worthy boneheads keep repeating the same mistake over and over. Granted it is hard to keep straight downfield kicks away from such a grasping performer, it wouldn't take much strategy to swing it away from him. He took one kickoff, and behind the most perfect blocking you ever saw went the distance, most of it along the touch line. He went 95 yards and Rider tacklers merely grazed him till he got into the clear.

Als were so superior they almost ruined Ottawas over the weekend. They are now in fourth place, haven't much chance of overhauling the improved Argos who nosed out Hamilton, can steady down to become Als most formidable opponents, as they seem likely to make a playoff spot.

The Wagner-Trawick presentation saw both players given a tremendous ovation. They were given gifts and money. Leo Dandurand, in a gracious gesture, presented Wagner with his old number 78 sweater which he said would not be used by any Alouette unless young Michael Wagner makes the team some years hence. Herb was really funny in his impromptu remarks, and brought a big cheer when he predicted Als would get thirty points and that he would get a touchdown if they allowed him to become a halfback.

It was a well paced affair and Glen MacKay and his associates did a fine job in their part of the presentation.

Not so pleasant was the way the crowd kept bothering officials and crowding the field after placements. There were a lot of goons in that gathering, young trouble makers who spurned the efforts of policemen to keep them in check. They were so bad that finally Alouette players had to appeal to them to desist lest the game be forfeited to Ottawas.

That could have happened and it would have resulted in the biggest uproar of the season. The crowd was warned of that possibility but paid little heed. Ottawa writers will now be able to point the finger of scorn at us over the incident with some reason. Unless some remedy is utilized to prevent such occurrences, some future Alouette game might be lost because of such boobery.

OTTAWA, Oct. 11 — The 15-man executive of the Ottawa Rough Riders Football Club and Coach Chan Caldwell will meet late today to probe the reasons for last weekend's two drubbings at the hands of Montreal Alouettes.

There was speculation of "drastic" moves to pep up the Big Four club. Reports said fines might be imposed and firings might take place.

The Rough Riders, playing indifferently, lost 35-7 here Saturday and 43-6 in Montreal Monday. The defeats came on top of a 40-0 shellacking at the hands of Hamilton Tiger-Cats the previous Saturday.

General Manager Jim McCaffrey said the meeting, originally scheduled for 12:30 p.m. and later postponed to 5:30 p.m. was called "to solve a lot of problems." He did not elaborate.

Big Four football clubs have until Saturday to register their final choice of imports, thus leaving open the possibility that new faces may be seen in the Ottawa line-up.

Caldwell was reported as saying that it is easier to pick up backfielders than linemen from the U.S. markets at this late date.

Als 'Policemen' At Molson Oval

There is a first time for everything they say, and Alouettes experienced it yesterday when players left the field and bench to assist police in clearing the younger element of the overflow crowd out of the end-zone, so the game could be completed.

Alouette officials were the first to admit that the crowd was poorly handled and that it lacked policing.

Fortunately, nobody was hurt in the stampedes after footballs. It was feared that some youth might be trampled in the mad rush. Club officials assume there will be adequate policing at Molson Stadium next Saturday for the Argo-Alouette game.

The Passing Sport Show

—By Baz O'Meara

THAT topsy turvy look in the hockey standings today may not last too long, but the view is very interesting. You won't often see Rangers up in second place, followed by Chicago Hawks. If they are still there in a few weeks' time you will know the revolution is at hand and that Jack Adams and James Skinner will be ready to take the gas.

Habs are humming along much as expected. Wings are in the cellar, which is a most unexpected development, but when you consider they are breaking in eight new players. This slump, if such as it, shouldn't cause too much surprise. They have too much class to linger long in such a predicament.

Goalie Hall may not be as good as expected, but the other rookies' too inexperienced. It could be too that Jack Adams has outtraded himself, but, of course, this is their guessing. After a dozen games the trend for them will develop. They should be up knocking at the door.

This observer wrote, after the All-Star game, that Wings were headed for all four. Maybe they are, but headed with rookies, but don't bet too heavily on it. Adams will be whip cracking because fans are getting restless in Detroit, where like fans everywhere, they have short memories and do not dwell too much on past glories.

Hawks have done well enough winning two games, but they don't seem to be doing much better at the gate. Rangers have been the sensations so far. They will come here on Saturday with stars in their eyes in an effort to take the NHL. Both the Detroit and Canadianos will still be undecided as to whether they will Saturday night. It should be quite an occasion for Phil Watson and his old team mate, Toe Blake.

Watson handled Dick Irvan a jolt when Rangers went into Chicago to rattle Bellows for seven goals. His follow-up entry into Detroit must have been sensational as well. Phil is the upstart coach of the league whose brassiness is sure to provoke incidents all over the circuit, unless he has calmed down a lot in the past two years.

Belleveau Stand Out

THREE looks at Habs convince close observers that they have one of their better balanced teams on display so far. The one in each game here is Tremblous, Babin, Houchard. This seems to be superbly conditioned for an early in the season, never played harvey or more effectively, than he did here on Saturday night. Harvey of course was outstanding and the other sides didn't make one mistake.

It has been written that nearly all Canadian boys rest at Plaine. He starts well, sometimes trans off, but if he keeps his present form over the long stretch it is going to be very hard for Gerry McNeil to get back into the nets.

Nobody has lapsed to date, but off a three-game showing Belleveau has been outstanding. He is almost brilliant, but only because he is setting the kind of treatment meted out to Richard for so long. Armstrong was after him on Saturday night, must have been surprised when Jean let him have a few shots. The big fellow can hit a heavy body check as he shoots on the occasion. He knows how to deal along the boards. He could be the Hart Trophy winner this year.

Young Henri Richard will know today or tomorrow whether he is going to stay up. Much will depend on how The Blake likes at it. Right now the chances would seem to be good, because of the absence of Geoffroy who might not be back in action for a month. The fear that he is too small has been pretty well dispelled. This kid is a sort of pocket Hercules. He is beautifully muscled and like Rocket, he is very strong looking. He should improve as he goes along.

Talbot is a comer if one judges on what he has shown so far. He fits into a very strong defence in an insurance way. He is fortunate he can be rehoused in such exceptional company.

There will be four or five of them lopped off the squad after today. They will be passengers on a plane or train for a change instead of passengers on the field.

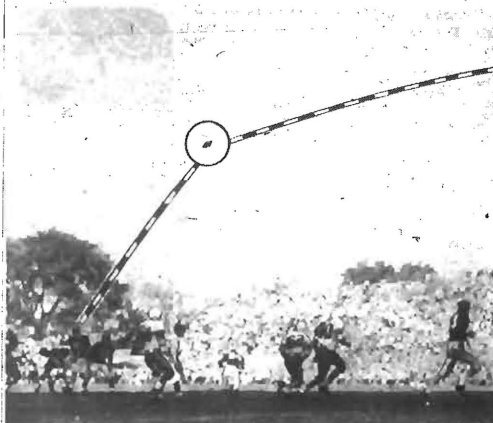

Als overwhelmed them and Patterson was at his starry best. You would think that what's worse than not trying is to keep the ball away from him on kickoffs, but those worthy horseheads keep repeating the same mistake over and over. Granted it is hard to keep straight downfield kicks away from such a cramping performer, it would be a much stronger strategy if you swing it away from him. He took one kickoff, and behind the most perfect blocking you ever saw went the distance, most of it along the touch line. He went 30 yards and rider kickers merely grazed him till he got into the clear.

Als were so superior they almost rattled Ottawa over the weekend. They are now in fourth place, haven't much chance of overhauling the approved Argos who nosed out Hamilton, can stand down to become Als most formidable opponents, as they seem likely to make a playoff spot.

The Wagner-Traveler presentation saw both players giving a tremendous ovation. They were given gifts and money. Leo Dandurand, in a gracious gesture, presented Wagner with his old number 28 sweater which he said would not be used by any Alouette unless young Arthur Wagner makes the team some years hence. Herb was really funny in his impromptu remarks, and brought a big cheer when he predicted Als would get thirty points and that he would get a touchdown if they allowed him to become a halfback.

It was a well paced affair and Glen McKay and his associates did a fine job in their part of the presentation. Not so pleasant was the way the crowd kept boistering officials and crowding the field after placements. There were a lot of zooms at that gathering, young trouble makers who spurned the efforts of policemen to keep them in check. They were so bad that family Alouette players had to appeal to them to desist lest the game be forfeited to Ottawa.

That could have happened and it would have resulted in the biggest upset of the season. The crowd was warned of that possibility but paid little heed. Ottawa writers will now be able to point the finger of scorn at us over the incident with some reason. Unless some remedy is utilized to prevent such occurrences, some future Alouette game might be lost because of such boohery.

Hal Patterson is all alone as he waits for 40-yard forward pass from Sam Etcheverry to score touchdown in yesterday's game at Molson Stadium against Ottawa.

Als Axe Brandt, Keep Caroline After Sweep Against Riders

By LLOYD MCGOWAN

Montreal Alouettes have brought down the axe for what they hope is the last time this season with the release today of Jim Brandt, a slippery back who was given the big test in Als' 45-6 romp over Ottawa Roughies yesterday. The decision to drop Brandt, while retaining the services of J. C. Caroline, was made at a huddle of the club brass at noon today.

This Alouettes now are going along with 10 active imports and one inactive player — Chuck Hunsinger — well within the October 15 deadline set down by the Big Four. Among the imports is Jim Williams, who capered and danced in fine fashion for the Als yesterday. Brandt parted with the Als on amiable terms, and indicated he would return for another stint with the club next year.

Yesterday's lark victory before a record 23,259 "Trawik-Wagner Day" fans at Molson Stadium, stimulated a whirlwind weekend which saw the Als posting a double from Ottawa, posting 78 points in the process. But the triumph could have been costly for the local forces. They see back, Pat Abruzzi, became a stretcher case in the third quarter when hit on a running play by Pete Beloff.

Abruzzi was dazed, but Dr. Gordon Young indicated that it wasn't likely the injury would sideline Pasquale for the Argos game on Saturday. Joe Pal, though, is a question mark. He was assisted from the field in great pain, and although no fracture is indicated, he's hobbling around with a badly swollen ankle.

Als' Newcomers Look Formidable

J. C. Caroline and Jim Brandt played adequately. Brandt looked like a former All-American. Johnny Williams played well enough in weekend games against Ottawa, to raise steady employment. Many wondered why Ottawa didn't use Geoff Cray, a good passer and defensive player.

On Saturday Coach Caldwell went all the way with Don Bailey and yesterday it was Scarbath who impressed as a good passer. That was a fine gesture by Alouettes to retire Virgil Wagner's number 78. Leo Dandurand, Alouette president, officiated at the presentation, which were spoiled from a spectator's standpoint by the surge of the unruly fans across the gridiron.

The Ottawa had little defence against the Als' passing, especially on the Etcheverry plays to Red O'Quinn and Joey Pal down the middle. They enjoyed a passing picnic until Pal and Abruzzi went out. Then Walker had to juggle his line-up which he did effectively.

Things reached such a taker sorry stage for the Ottawa yesterday that the Alouettes' defensive players were scoring touchdowns. Tommy Hugo and Juan Sheridan, the staunch defenders, capitalized on Ottawa's loose ball-handling and ran all the way for majors.

Avail Stone played a strong game for the Ottawa. His punting was superb but it was obvious that Coach Chan Caldwell isn't getting results with a club that has good personnel.

Football's a Grim Business

Ottawa's Bob Simpson doesn't get very far on this attempted run, as Alouettes' Johnny Williams takes him high and Red O'Quinn takes him high, during yesterday's Big Four clash at Molson Stadium.

Stamps Fire Bandiera For Telling Secrets

CALGARY, Oct. 11—(CP)—plays to Blue Bombers Saturday. Calgary Stampeders have fired head coach Dean Bandiera on the Calgary 13-12 in a Western interprovincial Conference football game to the enemy Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

The charge is that Bandiera disclosed some of his team's strategy to the Winnipeg Blue Bombers. Rightly or wrongly, Bandiera's name is poison in Calgary, but it appears that the affair will remain a personal one between player and team.

While a past president of Stampeders said the 28-year-old Canadian honoree was guilty of conduct detrimental to football, the Western Interprovincial Football Union itself took a much lighter view of the matter.

WIFU President Jack Rowand said in Regina that what he boiled down to was a slip of the tongue by Bandiera in the presence of his old Winnipeg buddies.

"Bandiera indicated to some of the Winnipeg players which plays Stampeders were going to use," he said. "He was just a little free in talking to the Winnipeg boys, and that's all there is to it. I don't think it really mattered much because they probably already knew the Calgary plays anyway."

As a result, Rowand said, Bandiera was cut from the club and league officials plan no disciplinary action.

Eskimos Clinch Top Spot Over Western Grid Field

The Western Interprovincial Football Union playoff picture is almost set after weekend games. Edmonton Eskimos have clinched first place and a bye into the finals of the three-team playoffs.

Saskatchewan Roughriders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers appear to have a big bulge to grab the other two spots. But second and third places are still undecided.

British Columbia Lions, now fourth, have only a slim chance of overtaking Saskatchewan or Winnipeg.

Calgary Stampeders, in last place, have only a mathematical chance of edging out Winnipeg for the third playoff berth.

Saturday, Esks trounced Lions 38-2 at Edmonton and Winnipeg

Als' Back Holds Lead In Scoring

TORONTO, Oct. 11 — Pat Abbruzzi of Montreal Alouettes helped himself to a three-touchdown Thanksgiving week-end in the Big Four football scoring race and a 10-point lead over runner-up Al Pfeifer of Toronto Argonauts.

Statistics compiled by the Canadian Press show the big Rhode Island State half with 60 points on 12 touchdowns. Pfeifer, with two converted touchdowns, took over second place from Ottawa's Bobby Simpson who went over for one touchdown as Rough Riders took a pair of wallpings from the Als.

Pfeifer now has 50 points on eight touchdowns and 10 converts and Simpson 45 points on nine touchdowns. Hal Patterson of the Als climbed six notches with three touchdowns against Ottawa for a point total of 33. Team-mate Bud Korchak had a big feast with a field goal and 10 converts during the week-end to climb into fifth position with 33 points.

The scoring.

Alouette Gridders Have Their Day

Ex-Big League Pitcher Killed

Howie Fox, 34, former big league hurler, was stabbed to death outside his San Antonio, Texas, tavern, Sunday. Fox, who pitched for San Antonio in the Texas League last season, was killed in a fight with three youths he had ordered out of the tavern. Fox spent seven years with Cincinnati Redlegs and one year with the Phillies. He pitched in the International League for Baltimore during the 1954 season.

Varsity Next Problem For McGill Redmen

McGill Redmen boasting the first point they have owned in the intercollegiate standings in two seasons, are preparing for the toughest date of the young season — a clash with unbeaten Varsity at Toronto Saturday.

The Redmen collected their point Saturday when they held the University of Western Ontario Mustangs to a 6-6 draw before 5,000 fans at Molson Stadium. Varsity, meanwhile, scored a dramatic come-from-behind 11-6 win over Queen's Golden Gaels at Toronto to take the league lead.

McGill and Western staged a tremendous battle of defensive winglines. Western's line prevented McGill from getting any kind of offensive rolling at all until the third period. Redmen, on the other hand, though they played just ordinarily in midfield, tightened in dramatic fashion when they were forced deep into their own zone.

Powerful Stands

Highlights of the game were three goal-line stands by McGill in the first half. On one occasion Western had four chances from the six-yard line, because of an offside call, but still couldn't score.

Bob Holland scored McGill's inajor after taking a pitch out from Dick Carr on the Western 15 late in the third quarter, breaking a scoreless match. Johnny Bennett converted. Ralph Simmons bulled over

Ticats Argos Divide

Hamilton Tiger-Cats Toronto Argonauts split Thanksgiving week-end doubleheader on routine, tense-filled finishes. Ticats came up with two fourth-quarter touchdowns to nip Argos at Hamilton on Saturday hours later at Toronto, won a 16-15 thriller with a verted touchdown as they ticked off the final second.

Things were vastly different in the home-and-home Argonaut series.

Tiger-Cats, behind 11-3 in final 15 minutes Saturday, a blocked kick and a questionable third-down Argonautable into two converted downs.

Joe Krol averaged 40 yards a kick for Argos at start of Argonauts' drive came late in the game when Neumann broke through Krol's punt, picked up the race 30 yards to score. Later, with the ball on the 36 and less than a yard on third down, quarterback Dublinski was stopped on a quarterback sneak and went on from there to score winning touchdown.

Payoff Punch

A crowd of 19,066 turned out at Varsity Stadium for the turn game and this time Argonauts came through with a payoff punch. Import Ford, playing his first game in Canada, hauled in a touchdown pass from Dublinski to score 15-13 and Al Pfeifer the game-winning convert.

Twice before Pfeifer in convert attempts at scored touchdowns on from Dublinski. His kick dead on and the big crowd wild. There was time for the kickoff before the final sounded.

Pfeifer also opened the to give Argonauts a 5-quarter lead. This was when Johnny Fedosoff, a castoff, broke through the of the line to run 80 yds a touchdown, converted Truant, in the second. Truant added a field goal Pfeifer gathered in his touchdown pass from D before the half ended Toronto ahead 10-9.

Tiger-Cats went ahead the fourth when Frank M finished off a drive by goal-line pass from Norkowski and Truant box extra point.
